Made it Myself Little Haiti Fair
Beautiful Creations Transcending Cultures

March 12, 2015 - Miami, Fl. - Atizan Ayiti and the Little Haiti Cultural Complex have teamed up to create the Made it Myself Little Haiti Fair. As a free, family oriented event on Saturday, March 28, 2015, the Made it Myself Little Haiti Fair provides art, crafts and jewelry enthusiasts a place to enjoy some of the best talent in South Florida. Showcasing local talents, as well as celebrating artisans, this event happening in the Caribbean Market Place in the heart of Little Haiti, will help promote the value of handmade and organic products.

"Haiti is culturally rich, our heritage brings out some of the most beautifully crafted pieces, but South Florida is equally teeming with local artists that add to the diversity that makes Miami the perfect extension of the Caribbean," says Angie Bell, creator of Made it Myself Little Haiti Fair.

Founder of Atizan Ayiti, Savinia Exantus said "Promoting the value of handmade and organic products crafted by local and international artists has always been our goal and Made it Myself creates the best platform to do so." Happening every last Saturday of the month, everyone is invited to discover the beauty that is hidden in the hands of several artists from around the world starting at 2pm until 8pm. At 6pm at the opening night events on March 28th, Atizan Highlight, an initiative of Atizan Ayiti and North East 2nd Ave Partnership, will honor Murielle Leconte for her outstanding community work and her strength, as well as life's triumphs.

As a modern day replica of Haiti's famous iron market, the Caribbean market Place is the perfect backdrop to display some of our community's greatest artists, while presenting some fresh-new talents to the world.

Made it Myself Little Haiti Fair happens on Saturday, March 28, 2015 from 2pm to 8pm to open the doors to the beauty that lies within the multi-faceted South Florida.
